Laura Ramos is a water professional with over 20 years of experience in delivering water resource management solutions through education, collaboration, and research. She particularly enjoys providing current research knowledge to water managers creating a nexus between academia and practical research applications in the field. As a result, she has been able to form teams of experts to address water resource management issues by connecting Fresno State researchers to the community. She is always looking for water management issues with a need for solutions that Fresno State can help address.

California Water Institute

Division of Research and Education

The Division connects academia to the water community to solve water management challenges through education and research. To achieve this, the division engages faculty and students in developing interdisciplinary, inclusive, research-based solutions to water challenges for a sustainable water future.
